On Attending a "Healing Your Financial Soul" seminar... again!

You might say, if it's worth doing twice, it's worth doing once. In the spring of 2008, we had David Hicks come for a "Healing Your Financial Soul" seminar. Now, as a pastor of 20 years, with an even longer track record in business and a church that houses a homeless shelter, I already was an expert in my own mind about money, finances and such. But I attended expectantly. A number of our leaders also sat in and we were all left "jazzed" by the material David covered.

This was definitely NOT your typical budget/save/tithe stuff. He dealt with heart issues, mindsets and religious baggage (vs. striving) and put a lot of Bible, self-help and New Age teaching in perspective. I personally found the material very enlightening and thought provoking, and it helped me deal with some of my own personal misconceptions and expectations about money. And we started seeing tangible results.

In fact, we liked it so much; we invited him back in the fall. I attended again and received even more blessing from it! Our intent is to bring him back again next year and expect more people to attend based on the testimonies of people that attended the last two events.
